

Kara B. Sessums, DVM, DACVIM

Neurology & Neurosurgery

Dr. Sessums earned her degree in veterinary medicine from Texas A&M University. After graduation, Dr. Sessums practiced as an emergency veterinarian for three years in Dallas/Fort Worth. Dr. Sessums then completed a neurology/neurosurgery internship at the Dallas Veterinary Surgical Center, followed by a three-year neurology/neurosurgery residency at the University of Florida. From there, Dr. Sessums spent two years practicing in Colorado followed by seven years practicing at Veterinary Emergency & Referral Group in New York. Dr. Sessums' interests include refractory epilepsy, brain tumor treatments and spinal surgery. She is excited about medical advances in the field including new treatments for granulomatous meningoencephalitis and immunotherapy for brain tumors.

In her spare time, Dr. Sessums enjoys spending time with her daughter, gardening, and reading. She has four cats, two dogs, one fish, one hermit crab, one tortoise, two mice and one guinea pig. Dr. Sessums is an avid marathon runner and has completed three full Ironman Triathlons.