

David Whitley, DVM, MS, DACVO

Dr. David Whitley earned his DVM and MS degrees at Auburn University. He completed a small animal rotating internship at the University of Missouri. He received residency training in comparative ophthalmology at the University of Florida and Auburn University. Dr. Whitley is board certified by both the American College of Veterinary Ophthalmologists and the Latin American College of Veterinary Medicine. He has served on veterinary college faculties at the University of Wisconsin, Auburn University (Professor Emeritus), Iowa State University, and the University of Florida. He has special interests in cataract surgery, corneal surgery, eyelid plastic surgery, dry eye and ocular surface disease, glaucoma, inherited eye disease, and ocular signs/manifestations of systemic diseases. He is active in the ACVO and has served on committees for the American Veterinary Medical Association.

