

Lisa Weeth, DVM, DACVN

Dr. Lisa Weeth is an alumnus of the University of California (UC), Davis, three times over. She first graduated from UC Davis in 1997 with a bachelor degree and then in 2002 was awarded her doctor of veterinary medicine from that same institution. After two years as a general practice and emergency veterinarian in the San Francisco Bay Area, she returned to UC Davis once again in 2004, where she completed a three-year residency in small animal clinical nutrition. She became a diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Nutrition in 2007 and moved to New Jersey that same year to establish the first dedicated clinical nutrition department in a private veterinary hospital.
