

Rhonda Dixon, DVM

Emergency & Critical Care

Dr. Rhonda Dixon earned her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree from Texas A&M University in 1999, following a dual bachelor's degree in Biomedical Science and Animal Science from Texas A&M in 1994. With over 15 years of experience practicing emergency and critical care medicine in the Houston and Sugar Land areas, Dr. Dixon has become a trusted expert in her field. Her professional interests include trauma medicine, feline medicine, and endoscopy, where her skills and compassion make a difference for patients in their most critical moments.

Outside of her veterinary work, Dr. Dixon treasures time with her wife and their beloved menagerie of cats, dogs, and a bird. An avid football fan and adventure enthusiast, she enjoys relaxing at her lake house in East Texas and exploring off-road trails in her 4WD FJ Cruiser.