

Kellee Williams, CVPM

Kellee has spent almost 20 years dedicated to veterinary medicine, a career path she entered by chance and quickly fell in love with. She earned her Associate of Science degree from Lone Star College in 2014 and her Bachelor of Science degree in 2020.

Kellee joined GCVS in 2021 as an Avian & Exotics Supervisor. She earned her CVPM certification in 2023, assumed leadership of the Internal Medicine department in September 2024, and was promoted to her current role as Director of Specialty Services in April 2025.

Before entering veterinary medicine, Kellee proudly served in the U.S. Army, specializing as an Advanced Signal Support Systems Specialist (31U). Outside of work, Kellee is an avid adventurer who enjoys hiking, canoeing, camping, and traveling. She has a deep appreciation for historic architecture and loves old buildings. She describes herself as a “nerd at heart,” often enjoying documentaries on random facts.

At home, she shares her life with her 13-year-old Rat Terrier mix, Mya, and a spirited green-cheeked conure named Gabe. She is also a proud mother to three adult sons and is excited to welcome her first granddaughter in June 2025, finally bringing a little girl into the family!
